

Entangled History

as a perspective for non-formal education

An international training for developing methods in the non-formal education

03.-08.07.2017 in Krzyżowa (PL)

WHO CAN APPLY?

Multipliers of youth work (18 years upwards) living in Germany, Poland and Ukraine who are interested in editing and developing methods in the field of Holocaust education with an entangled historical approach. Participants should be committed to international cooperation or be active in youth meetings, citizenship education or related fields of work with young people.

Since the training is going to be held in English, an advanced level of English is required. Please apply individually by June 11th 2017 (please see application information below).

SUMMARY OF THE PROJECT

"Entangled History as a perspective for non-formal education" is a series of events consisting of a training for youth workers (03.-08.07.2017) and an international youth meeting (January 2018). During the training 18 youth workers from Germany, Poland and Ukraine will meet in order to develop and modify methods for the historical and civic non-formal education viewed in the context of a growing diversity in our societies. Due to globalization and migration our societies in Europe become more and more diverse. The field of non-formal education must take this challenge and needs to integrate this diversity into its project formats. Old narratives need to be analyzed and challenged and multiple perspectives on historical events have to be included.

The Holocaust as a focal point will be examined from multiple perspectives which will allow to draw conclusions on marginalized groups and discrimination in our current societies. Further goals of the project are the promotion of tolerance, giving an impulse to critical thinking as well as raising awareness towards diversity and against discrimination.

During the training participants develop and modify methods that can be applied in the following international youth meeting as well as in the every day work of the youth workers.

All methods will be published in a handbook and on a project blog.

METHODOLOGICAL HANDBOOK

Objective of the project is editing methods of Holocaust education in order to publish them in the handbook that is available on a project blog. The handbook has been created in 2016 as a result of a first training of “Entangled History”. New methods shall be added with a focus on the topic of the Holocaust. Ideally the participants have some knowledge about methods of non-formal education and contribute to the training by bringing in their own methods for modification. Participants should be aware of the fact, that their participation in the training might require some time after the training as well. Participants get the chance to write down their methods, individually or in small groups, and to publish them in the handbook.

WORKING METHODS

- * Lectures and discussion forums on entangled history, cultures of remembering as well as Holocaust education in Germany, Poland and Ukraine
- * Workshops including learning methods with an entangled historical approach
- * Workshops in order to develop and modify methods for the historical and civic non-formal education
- * Guided tours in the memorial sight of Krzyżowa and the Muzeum Gross-Rosen
- * Presentations by participants about their own field of work and methods
